PHOENIX LODGE HOLDS SERVICES TO HONOR DEAD

The annual memorial services of the Modern Order of Phoenix were held in Phoenix hall yesterday afternoon, about 100 members taking part. Attorney Lorrin Andrews was the orator of the day and spoke of that Great Beyond where the members would meet again some day as brothers. He finished with Thanatopsis. The 2nd Infantry orchestra, Professor Carl Muttner with the violin, and a quartet consisting of Slattery, Arnold, Waia-mau and Caesera, furnished music.

The names of the honored dead which were called from the platform were: G. C. Pollack, Julius Asch, George Piltz, G. B. Leibman and P. J. Monaghan.

DAVID C. PETERS OUTLINES CAUSE OF 'GREAT WAR'

Declaring that the European war was brought about largely by spiritual laxity among the countries of the Old World—the materialism of Germany, the agnosticism of France, the greed of England—and that the lives and blood of the unnumbered dead have been sacrificed on the altar of an unspiritual world, David Cary Peters, minister of the Christian church, delivered an inspiring sermon to the members of his congregation last night.

The topic of Minister Peters' address was "The Big Issue," and he pointed out, the big issue in his opinion was the question of the return of the nations to the steadfast faith of their fathers. He declared that, as a result of the war civilization has been beaten down and crushed, and that it can never be restored until the spiritual self of the warring countries overshadow materialism, agnosticism and greed.

"For 50 years preachers the world over foretold this present crisis," he said. "They warned and importuned; they denounced the destructive forces at work undermining the peace and happiness of the people; they predicted the inevitable consequences of these forces provided they were allowed to run riot and overthrow the spiritual balance wheel, without which no nation can hope to live contentedly. They saw what was coming and they sounded the warning. But what was the result? They were laughed at, scoffed at, ridiculed by people whose creed of materialism rendered them blind to everything else."

"None of us is neutral," apropos to the sympathies one may have for or against one of the belligerents. "We may say we are neutral, but that is impossible. We all have our prejudices and preferences. The only man who hasn't is the man without brains."

DREIER GIVES FAREWELL ADDRESS AT METHODIST

Delivering his final address prior to departing for the mainland to attend the Rochester Theological Seminary, William H. Dreier, secretary of the intermediate department at the Y. M. C. A., spoke to a large congregation in the Methodist church last night. His topic was "The Ministry."

Dreier urged that all young men who are making their start in life should make it with Jesus Christ. He pointed out that everyone is a minister and that everyone is preaching sermons. Some help people with their sermons, and others do not, he added. In conclusion, the speaker emphasized the ministry of the love of Jesus Christ.

Dreier will leave in the Matsonia next Wednesday and will visit his home in Iowa before entering the seminary.

ALLEGES HOLD-UP AND ASSAULT BY ROUGHS

A gang of about a dozen Hawaiian and Portuguese boys waylaid R. Gomes and his brother and father on Kaihi street near Kaunualii road last night and escaped after the former had been struck on the head with a bottle, according to a report at the police station.

Gomes was treated at the emergency hospital for cuts on the head. The assault was unprovoked, says Gomes, and he recognized none of the gang.

M'KINLEY GRADUATE TELLS OF WORLD'S MELTING POT—HAWAII

Many Opportunities Placed In Paths of Various Nationalities, He Says.

"Hawaii, the World's Melting Pot," was the topic of an essay read by Benjamin H. K. Yap, one of the members of the class of 1916, at the commencement exercises of McKinley high school in the opera house last Friday evening.

The essay follows: "The loveliest fleet of islands ever anchored in a tropic sea." Such is the epitome of one of the world's greatest writers when he was asked how this group of islands, which compose the Territory of Hawaii, impressed him. As one enters the harbor of Honolulu, extinct craters, volcanic peaks and thick-foliated mountains present themselves to his view. And thus entrancing sight, one's first impression of the beauty of Hawaii, is enhanced by a wide coastal stretch of palms, and one agrees with the great writer.

"The location of this beautiful Hawaii has much to do with making it the 'world's melting pot.' Immigrants of the many races come here. Do these immigrants and their children form the ingredients for the 'melting pot?' Yes, and in the most natural way, too.

"Situated as it is in the direct paths of ocean-going vessels from both Occident and Orient, many different races are consequently brought here—these races forming a most cosmopolitan population. As one would naturally think, the settlement and close contact of so many races, representing as many countries, and as many different customs and manners, would produce some sort of race prejudice among the people. This is not so, as any observant person will tell you. But this varied population is a credit to Hawaii because the consideration that one race has for another is almost that of brother for brother, and sister for sister. At various places, where the influx of immigrants is similar, many projects have been tried, but none has succeeded so well as the one tried in Hawaii, with this condition in its favor, Hawaii is destined to become the home of a population varied in nationalities but common in interests.

"One institution which is bringing these varied nationalities more closely together is the school of Hawaii. The educational problem of any country is of vital importance to its future, but its effect upon Hawaii is momentous because of the many nationalities represented in her schools. Here, the tots of the kindergartens, children of the grammar schools from 6 to 16 years of age, up to the young men and women of the high schools of 15 or more nationalities assemble and participate in the many interesting phases of school life in the most cordial manner.

"In these schools, modern in every way and of which we boast much, are taught ideals and principles of America, a great republic. Justly proud are we that these islands are an integral part of America. To see the children of these schools, all future American citizens, celebrate any national American holiday would be to see children of one nationality celebrate one of their own holidays—so patriotic and so attached are the children of these races to their adopted country.

"The industrial facilities offered to immigrants, especially of the laboring classes, also tend to bring the races in close relation to one another. On the plantations, in the mills, in the business offices, and wherever men are employed, the immigrant works in perfect harmony with his neighbor. Furthermore, newly arrived immigrants are given every encouragement to obtain employment in the mills and plantations. This facility makes the immigrant able to support himself, and the longer he remains in this foreign land the more he learns to love it. The first thought of any person who contemplates going to another land is, 'Is the climate suitable and easy to adapt oneself to?' To this every person in Hawaii proudly answers that it cannot be beaten anywhere. This wonderful climate helps to ease the living conditions, and indirectly aids the laborers at their work. It has caused Hawaii to be known as 'The Paradise of the Pacific,' and has lured many immigrants that form the ingredients of the melting pot. Under such pleasant conditions the children of our schools enjoy their work and play, and are brought much more easily under their molding influence.

"The Chinese constitute a good part of Hawaii's population. They have grasped the American spirit and ways. Many opportunities are placed in their path. We, who belong to the younger generation, ought to grasp these opportunities and make the most of them. It is our duty to live up to the standards of America, the home in which we, fortunately, have been placed. To make Hawaii, our homeland, the 'world's melting pot,' every race represented here should do its share and adapt itself to the conditions that make a land of peace. To this end we who have been brought in American schools can contribute much, and it is a pleasure to us to think that we shall be able to take part in so great a public good."

William G. Sharp, the American ambassador to France, made a fortune from the manufacture of chemicals.

Russia's population will be 600,000,000 by the end of this century if it maintains its present rate of increase.

THEY REFUSE TO EAT

At periods in most children's lives they fail to relish their meals and refuse to eat even the delicacies prepared to tempt their appetites. They lack ambition, and growth seems impeded, which causes anxiety and worry.

To compel them to eat is a grave mistake, because nutrition is impaired. Healthful exercise in fresh air and sunshine is important, but equally important is a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion three times a day to feed the tissues and furnish food-energy to improve their blood, aid nutrition and sharpen their appetites.

The highly concentrated medicinal-food in Scott's Emulsion supplies the very elements children need to build up their strength. They relish Scott's—it is free from alcohol.
